Barbecue & Raffle
The August Meeting

The August 2 meeting of the Mountain View Historical Association will be our Fifth Annual Barbecue & Raffle. The place is the Patio at the Mountain View Senior Center, 266 Escuela Ave. This is the same location as for the last two years.

The membership should have received a flyer recently about the Barbecue & Raffle. The flyer included a form to clip and return, along with your check, to let the Association know how many to plan for and how much food to prepare. If you lost flyer, this Newsletter contains all of the necessary information, so clip that form and send it in! Do it! The Association needs to know you're coming!

No major business items, so that part of the meeting will be very brief. We are again planning live music to aid the conversation and digestion. Al Jehning will do his magic with the hamburgers, and we look forward to Art Walton's legendary potato salad. There will, of course, be the usual fabulous raffle prizes.

The important part of the day is the opportunity to get together with friends and acquaintances. Bring your friends. Perhaps if they are not members, we might persuaded them to join. Let us know you're coming, and we'll see you at the Fifth Annual Barbecue & Raffle on Sunday, August 2.

El Camino Hospital And the Practice of Medicine After WW II
The May 1998 Meeting

The May meeting of the Mountain View Historical Association featured Dr. H.M. [Hugh] Upton, M.D. Dr. Upton established his practice in the Los Altos–Mountain View area in the early 1950's and has practiced here ever since with his special interest being in family medicine.

In the mid 1950's he became aware of the acute need for a central medical facility in the Mountain View area and was involved in the early committee work to the create the El Camino Hospital District and eventually the development of El Camino Hospital, one of the premier medical facilities of the entire Bay Area.

Dr. Upton has served as Chief of Staff for the Hospital and on various Committees and Task Forces overseeing the operation of the Hospital.

Dr. Upton spoke from personal experience of the early days of the El Camino Hospital, the problems created by the shifting operational status, and the medical, economic and political environment which surrounds this fine institution.

THE GREAT WAR IN SANTA CLARA COUNTY

NYLE C. MONDAY

To most of us today, the origin of Veteran's Day is little more than a hazy recollection of something to do with past wars and the Veterans who fought in them. Yet the significance of November 11th and the five years, 1914–1918, which led to the establishment of what was formerly called Armistice Day, still impacts us down to the present. The beginning of the "Great War" sent out ripples that were soon felt far beyond the lands of Europe and, by 1917, were even affecting life in California. The United States had traditionally tried to avoid foreign entanglements, but the rapid growth and prosperity of the young nation soon encouraged some to feel that America deserved a place among the major powers of the world. The outbreak of World War I would be the stage upon which the country would play its first major role.

As America drew closer to war, the Federal Government began to study how the population could be mobilized. The idea of a draft was still relatively unfamiliar to most Americans. There had been a draft during the Civil War of course, but it had sparked riots, particularly in New York City, which resulted in many deaths and injuries. Would the same be true this time? No one could be sure, but there seemed to be no practical alternative, and so on May 18, 1917, the Selective Service Act (which still exists in a modified form) became law. On registration day, June 5, 1917, California registered 298,989 men between the ages of 21 and 31 as eligible for military service, with no disturbance of any kind.

The mood of Mountain View and of Santa Clara County as a whole over the course of the next year and a half is clearly reflected in a volume titled War History of Santa Clara County, published by the Santa Clara Historical Society in 1919. The History Room of the Mountain View Public Library recently obtained a photocopy of this fascinating pamphlet, which details how the people of this area threw themselves into the war effort with tireless enthusiasm. Volunteer organizations of every description quickly appeared, involving everyone from small children to senior citizens. Among the names listed are many which will be familiar to students of local history, as well as many more who were just "average" people trying to help as best they could.

The greatest sacrifices, however, were of course those of the men and women who left the peace and security of home for the distant battlefields of Europe, or for many other far-flung outposts around the world. Ultimately, more than 135,205 Californians actually served in the armed forces, more than three thousand of whom enlisted or were drafted from Santa Clara County. Among the servicemen from Mountain View were three young men of the Robart family: August, Eugene and Leon. After joining the Army, August and Leon were assigned to Camp Lewis, Washington, where many California men were sent to fill the ranks of the 91st ("Evergreen") Infantry Division. Leon eventually went overseas as a member of that Division's 363rd Infantry Regiment (H Company). Unfortunately, he was never to see home again. Killed in action, he became Mountain View's only combat casualty of the war. In later years his sacrifice would be commemorated with the establishment of the Leon Robart Post of the American Legion.

The stories of Leon Robart and his fellow veterans of the Great War still remain, for the most part, unwritten. Santa Clara County can boast of many interesting tales, including that of Sing Kee, a Sergeant in the 306th Infantry Regiment (77th Division), who became the first Chinese–American to win the Distinguished Service Cross. While photographs of the parade given in his honor through the streets of San Jose's Chinatown may still be seen in the History Room, the records of te service of most of his comrades are still unrecorded. Perhaps readers of this newsletter will be able to add to our knowledge of this understudied portion of Mountain View's history, and future generations will have a better understanding of the significance of "the eleventh hour, of the eleventh day, of the eleventh month."

STREET TALK

In the May Newsletter we included a new item called Street Talk. We asked: In the early 1960s Mountain View had a Curling Avenue. Where was its location and for what was it named? We heard from Lennart Ahlkvist, now of Coulterville, CA. He remembers going to Curling Avenue a few times to watch games at the Curling rink. He was close on identifying the location of the street. It is now called Mayfield Avenue, and is actually located North of the Central Expressway and East of San Antonio Road.

This issue, Barbara Kinchen has come up with another puzzler for us. Evelyn Avenue before the mid 1950s carried what name?
