Ninth Annual Barbecue & Raffle August 4, 2002

The August 4, 2002 meeting of the Mountain View Historical Association will be our Ninth Annual Barbecue & Raffle. The place this year will be beautifully restored Adobe Building and its patio and lawn area.

If you haven't been to a recent meeting at the Adobe Building, it is located on the Northeast corner of the intersection of Moffett Blvd and the Central Expressway, across the expressway from the rail and light rail station.

The membership was sent a flyer recently, reproduced on page three of this Newsletter, providing the menu and agenda for the meeting. If you lost or misplaced the flyer, don't despair! Let any of the officers no you're coming so that we can have the correct amount of food available.

The important part of the day is the socializing, so come early. Bring your friends, they will be welcome whether they are members or not. We'll see you on Sunday, August 4, 2002 at the Adobe Building, for the Ninth Annual Barbecue & Raffle.

Milestones: A History of Mountain View & The Mountain View Centennial

The May Meeting

Wally Erichsen and Barbara Kinchen reviewed the history of the development of the new book, Milestones. They have worked closely with the author, Mary Jo Ignoffo and Tom Izu, Executive Director of the California History Center & Foundation. They had hoped to have an actual copy of the book at hand but we were about two weeks early for that. Nonethe-less, war stories are always interesting. The book is now available and appears to be selling well, but more of that on the financial pages.

A report was given by members of the Mountain View Centennial Committee outlining the various events which they have scheduled for the City. The Ice Cream Social was a great success. The committee expects the November dedication of the Centennial Plaza and the rebuilt railroad station to be equally successful.

Hamburger Heaven in Mountain View
By Candace Bowers

Visitors to the Mountain View Public Library are often struck by the artwork of Mike Carroll that is displayed throughout the building. His vivid paintings of old-time Mountain View scenes have an almost photo graphic realism. His paintings of some of Mountain View's beloved drive-in restaurants — Linda's, Johnny Mac's, and Spivey's — evoke memories straight out of American Graffiti.

Linda's Restaurant stood at the corner of El Camino Real and Escuela for almost 30 years. Owners Dean and Rebecca Riggs had named their business after their eldest daughter. A popular local hangout, Linda's was famed for it Parisian burger — a thick burger topped with a "secret recipe" tomato sauce on a hard roll, served with potato puffs (similar to "tater tots"). Dean Riggs died in December 1984, and his widow closed the restaurant in July 1985. The building was taken over by a Photo Drive-up, and is now the site of Wolf Camera. But the Parisian burger didn't disappear entirely. In the mid 90s, it was resurrected by Robert Melnuedo and Sam Galvan Jr. At Galvan's Bar and Grill. Located on Evelyn Avenue near the Sunnyvale border, Galvan's closed its doors in May 1996.

Johnny Mac's was located at 1313 El Camino, now the site of a dry cleaners and a liquor store. The building retains the glass-fronted, circular shape. The restaurant was opened by John McClain and William Clark in the late 40s, and specialized in "the Big Mac," chicken and steaks. (McDonald's didn't introduce their "Big Mac" until 1968.) There were other Johnny Mac's branches on El Camino Real, in Redwood City and Sunnyvale. Johnny Mac's was heavily damaged by fire in 1961. By the late 60s it had become Lane's Drive-In, and later the Pilgrim Inn.

Spivey's opened in the mid-60s at 175 El Camino Real near Grant Road (currently the site of the Bank of Los Altos.) Thomas Spivey started his chain in 1930 and was known for opening the first drive-in Restaurant in Northern California. There were other branches of Spivey's in Sunnyvale, Campbell, Santa Cruz, and downtown San Jose. Their specialty was broasted chicken. Conveniently, they fronted the drive-in movie Theater.

Street Talk

The May Street Talk question was: What was the former name of Meadow Lane in the Springer Meadows subdivision off Springer Road?

The Answer: In 1955 Council officially changed Jadsco Avenue to Meadow Lane. The original used an initial from each of the four men who developed Springer Meadows Subdivision No. 1 - Peter Jelavich, Lawrence Anderson, Maurice Dubin, Walter Seibert - adding the abbreviation for company.

New Question: In 1902 the county was asked to "layout, open and maintain a public road" to run from Fremont Avenue, on the bank of Permanente Creek, north to the San Francisco Road opposite Castro Street. This became Miramonte Avenue, but originally how was it written?

Members, how about contributing to Street Talk?

New to the Mountain View History Center
By Barbara Kinchen

From the Lane Family: Someone from the Lane family, which operated creameries and a drive-in restaurant in Mountain View, has lent Carol Fischer a number of interesting photos. Copies are being made for our files.

In Commemoration

Forrest Robert Morrison — Died in Mountain View June 16,2002, at the age 86. Survived by children Dan Morrison and Valorie Morrison and three grand children. Husband of the late Vicky Morrison. Old Newspaper Items Compiled by Barbara Kinchen

100 Years Ago (1902): Someone pried open the postoffice door, dynamited the safe and stole $100 cash and stamps worth $600.

Many local families enjoyed summer camping trips to Capitola and San Gregoria.

Professor and Mrs. Daniel T. Ames entertained at a large Fourth-of-July picnic at their home, Lakeside. (Part of present Foothill property). The estate has been sold to a Mr. Griffin of San Mrancisco and Mr. Ames is having a large two-story bulding constructed on Castro Street with stores at street level and family living quarters above.

Asparagus is becoming an important crop in Santn Clara County, especially around Alviso and Milpitas.

Sunnyvale and Mountain View were rivals for the starting point of a proposed Southern Pacific extension to West Side (Cupertino) and Saratoga-Los Gatos area.

Over seventy young Republicans have organized the Independent Republican Club of Mountain View, supporting the movement for honest municipal government and opposing bossism in politics.

Attorney G.K. Estes was preparing a petitio asking the County Board of Supervisors to approve an election approving incorporation of Mountain View. The 75-member Board of Trade was urging fellow citizens to sign when the petition is ready.

75 Years Ago (1927): Meat prices for July at the Skaggs-Safeway Store at 235 Castro: Pot roast 12½¢ a pound, round and rump roast 20¢ a pound, Cudahy Puritan ham 30¢ a pound.

The Mountain View Register-Leader boasted there were 8,000 reader of this fine local paper.

The Town Council was considering the hiring of "an extra policeman to asssist in taking care of the traffic on Saturday nights".

Richmond-Chase Cannery asked the Chamber of Commerce and the Council to provide free campgrounds for new workers being hired.

First Church of Christ Scientist dedicated its new church building on View Street at Mercy.

The late prune crop has forced a change in the opening date for schools, from September 12 to the 19th.

South Shore Port, at the bay end of Whisman Road, wa sold in a bankruptcy sale to W.Q. Wright of San Francisco for $89,000. Included with the port and facilities were two diesel freight barges and several trucks.

The 13th annual Prune and Apricot Exposition was held from September 13 - 17. Lawson's Grocery won a $25 prize for best-decorated store front and the parade float entered by the Japanese community was judged the most beautiful.

50 Years Ago (1952): The Library moved from upstairs in City Hall to rented quarters at 945 Dana Street. Objections have been raised to plans to build a new City Hall and new Library on former cemetery property on Church Street. (Now Pioneer Memorial Park)

The Adobe Creek Lodge, Los Altos, featured Harry James and his famous orchestra on July 16th.

An estimated 380 spectators watched the Blue Angels perform over Moffett Field. Temperatures reached 100 degrees over the weekend.

Legal problems appear to be clearing up for the empty twelve story skyscraper at 492 Castro Street. Construction was stopped in 1971 because of financial problems and too few planned parking spaces. This International Environmental Dynamics (IED) Building was built in a unique manner. Two towers were constructed, a floor was assembled at ground level and elevated by a cable system to become the top floor. As each level was built, it too was lifted, creating a built-from-the-top structure.

Charles Gordon, on Council for more than 15 years, resigned after being appointed a County Superior Court Judge. Appointed to fill the vacancy was attorney, Leslie C. Nichols.

PG&E is partially funding a demonstration project at the Shoreline Park development to collect and market methane gas produced by decomposition of buried waste.
