By Robert Weaver

Our November meeting is the bi-annual election of our Board of Directors. The current board began under the leadership of president Honor Spitz, who served the membership with distinction. One of her major accomplishment was the adoption of new by-laws and standing rules, which now allows the board more flexibility to conduct the association's business. With more of the board's business centered on the new History Museum, the updating is a welcome relief. The board deserves a lot of thanks for all the time and effort that they have given to the association. We will miss those who are retiring and welcome those who will be joining us for the first time.

The History Museum accepted three plaster busts from the collection of the late Anna Knapp Fitz. The sculptures are of Crisanto Castro and his wife Francisca Armijo and Catholic Father Bixio. Anna, a local artist and a long time member of our association as well as the Los Altos History Museum, created the sculptures. Anna was born in San Francisco in 1912 to German emigrants who later moved down the Peninsula and bought an 8.5 acre farm in the area of present Los Altos Avenue near El Camino Real. We are looking forward to including the sculptures in our permanent collection.

I have enjoyed filling in as acting president this last year, and hope to see each of you at our November meeting.

NOVEMBER SPEAKER

By Robert Weaver

We are presenting a fascinating speaker for our November program, Nelson W. "Bill" Hyler. Bill will tell us about his mother -- the late Elmarie Leslie Hurlbert Hyler Dyke, of Pacific Grove. She was a very dynamic woman who accomplished many major projects throughout our state. Bill is a wonderful speaker and will keep you entertained.

Nelson William "Bill" Hyler, is a WWII US Navy veteran who saw action in the South Pacific and Guadalcanal and the New Hebrides Islands. He was a teacher for 14 years, an elementary school principal, a high school teacher, and a college teacher. He was also a plastics manufacturer on Cannery Row, Monterey, a sea shell dealer, a merchant on Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey for some 60 years, and the owner of "The Wharf's General Store" and building. He is now retired, widowed and living in Pebble Beach, California. 89 years young!

Bill will be telling about how Elmarie decided the California Bear Flag with the 'so called Grizzly Bear' looked more like a pig than a bear, and how she changed it. How she heard of some 1000 acres of Sequoia gigantean trees were going to be cut down in Kern County and how she saved them. There are more stories to tell. The list is almost endless.

Elmarie was an energetic person of many talents. A graduate of Pacific Grove High School in 1915, of San Jose Normal School in 1918 [a two year teacher training school at this time] and later an AB graduate "with Great Distinction" of San Jose State College in 1940.

She started her teaching career in Sutter Creek, Amador County, California in 1919; met and married Nelson William Hyler, Mayor of Sutter Creek, gold mine owner, garage owner, and Superintendent of Mine Rescue for the Mother Lode. Hyler passed away in 1927 of tuberculosis and Elmarie returned to Pacific Grove, her childhood and her parent's home, with two small boys, Nelson William Hyler, Junior 6 years old and Robert Elgin Hyler 4 ½ . In 1934 she married a local pharmacist, Clyde Franklin Dyke, owner of a small drug store chain.

She continued her teaching career, and became the Monterey County Supervisor of some 32 schools of Monterey County. She also was an in-demand teacher at San Jose State College and other school meetings, and groups concerned with elementary education. She served on several state panels, appointments, and traveled the United States to a number of educational events as a lecturer. Her work in education led her to several national conventions and she was known and recognized as an authority of reading and art for elementary schools.

STREET TALK

Submitted by Barbara Kinchen

Crittenden Lane is between Shoreline Boulevard and Stevens Creek, about opposite the Shoreline Amphitheatre. It carries the name of one of our early families of that North Bayshore area.

Reverand Orrim Crittenden (1814 – 1903), a Baptist minister who was important in early Mountain View churches, and other churches in Northern California, acquired 160 acres on the East side of Stevens Creek in 1853.

His adopted son, Albert M. Crittenden (1861 – 1958), then owned the ranch until it was purchased to become part of Moffett Field in the early 1930's. Albert was a student in the earliest years of Whisman School and his father served on the School Board. For many years, Albert was also a school board member and was honored in 1949 by the opening of the Albert M. Crittenden School on Rock Street.

THE RANCH

I grew up on an apricot ranch (we called it a Ranch, not an orchard) at 313 South Bernardo Avenue, Mountain View (formerly Rt. 2, Box 58). In 1943, my parents and my Mother's parents, purchased a ten acre apricot Ranch. The Ranch was originally part of the Rancho de las Borregas patented to Martin Murphy Jr.

Coming from San Francisco, we moved into a big two story, brown shingle Ranch house. The house, gardens, garages, tank house, cutting shed, chicken house and rabbit pens covered about an acre. The gardens became Daddy's delight. His begonias bloomed under the old, old oak tree whose limbs were secured with cables. However, the old, old oak fell over one day! Flowers included begonias, gladiolus, daphne, hydrangeas, fuchsias and tree roses along the long driveway to the house and gardens. We three children always took bouquets to the teachers at Highway Elementary! Daddy made a two-seater swing for us in the large pepper tree. A wine press was stored nearby; grapes were crushed each year making the family wine.

Daddy took his vacation during the apricot season. The fruit was usually sold to the same Stockton salesman (who was a teacher) for the Wood (then Fernwood) Canneries. We all worked on the Ranch during apricot season; we punched the picker's tally tickets, picked up fallen "cots" and cut "cots" for drying. The cut apricots were put on trays, placed in the smoke house overnight; the trays were then spread to dry. The dried apricots were then scraped off the trays using old license plates. We'd roller skate on the concrete cutting shed floor, but we really learned to skate in the downstairs back hallway; it made for an easier fall and we could hold onto the walls!

On Sundays, Daddy's brothers and their families would "come down the country" to help. The men would work with Daddy, the women talked and cooked, and we children played with our cousins. We enjoyed family dinners that evening around the dining room table. We children ate in the kitchen as there was never enough room for us too at the big table.

Oh, the tank house. In order to fill the water tank, you had to switch on the water pump and then watch the tank's water gauge. When it reached the top of the gauge, you ran to turn off the pump. If you were playing and not watching, you heard the sound of water cascading over the tank house down to the ground near the back door. Oh, my!! That meant Daddy would know you had let 1the tank overflow!! Because of the apricot season, we had one vacation trip during our time on the Ranch in a rented Capitola cabin. It was a special event for us all.

The Ranch was sold in 1956 near the end of the Santa Clara Valley farm era.

I have such fond memories growing up on the Ranch. And to this day, I can't get enough of apricots!
