President's Message

By Patricia Figueroa
MVHA President

Hi Everyone,

Summer is upon us and it's time again for our annual BBQ on Sunday, August 5. We are starting the BBQ one hour earlier than previous years, at 12pm. Along with our raffle we are again expanding our silent auction section. The BBQ will also include a very short business meeting.

Look for the BBQ RSVP form inside this newsletter. The RSVP deadline is Monday, July 30th. A reminder that if you chose to buy your raffle tickets when you RSVP then we will fill in the raffle ticket stubs for you.

A few months ago the Board established a Membership Review Subcommittee. One of the goals of the subcommittee was to review our membership dues. At our last board meeting the Membership Review Subcommittee recommended to the Board to increase the membership dues. This recommendation was approved by the Board. Our new annual Single Membership due is now $15 and Family Membership is $25. Life Membership remains unchanged.

The goal of the Board is to keep our Membership fees as reasonable as possible. One of the ways members can help is by choosing to receive your Quarterly Newsletter by e-mail, rather than print. Doing so helps us save costs, with the added bonus that when you receive by e-mail you get the benefit of reading the newsletter in full-color. To elect to receive the newsletter by e-mail, send your request to mvha.newsletter@gmail.com .

See you at the BBQ – a time for all of us to see old friends and make new ones.

Pat Figueroa

Updates from Around Town

By Nick Perry
Newsletter Editor

In this new column, we offer a brief digest of modern-day news related to Mountain View's history. First, an update on Moffett Field's iconic Hangar One. As the photo above shows, toxic siding has been removed by the government, exposing the impressive steel structure of the landmark dirigible hangar for the first time since its construction in the 1932. The steel is being coated to withstand effects of weathering while the Federal Government continues to ponder whether they'll accept an offer from Google's founders to restore the hangar. We'll keep you posted on any future updates.

After over 60 years downtown, Meyer Appliance is relocating to the former Ethan Allen building at 861 East El Camino Real near the Sunnyvale Border. As far as we know, Meyer's downtown location (originally built to house JC Penney) features the only publically accessible escalator in the entire City! Given how hopping Downtown is these days it'd be surprising to see the space vacant for long.

Across town, San Antonio Center is experiencing some major changes. If you haven't been there recently you'll be surprised to see new residential and commercial buildings rising where Sears once stood. When complete, the "Village at San Antonio Center" will replace the oldest portion of the center with mix of shopping and housing akin to San Jose's Santana Row.

A couple historic community events are occurring this summer. Mountain View's 60th annual Obon Festival and Bazaar will be held at the Mountain View Buddhist Temple on the weekend of July 20-21. The popular summer festival celebrates and honors the lives of lost loved ones with Japanese music, dance, food, and games. Our neighbor Sunnyvale is celebrating the centennial of its incorporation on the weekend of August 25-26. The website www.sunnyvale100.com has more information on the festivities. Finally, the Rengstorff House is hosting numerous arts and music events this summer- see page 4 for details!

New to the History Center

- From Katie Hambly of Long Beach, a 1916 Blue and Grey Mountain View High School yearbook. The school was located on El Camino Real at Calderon Avenue. There were seven teachers and principal, E.L. Zahn, and 25 graduates.

  In addition to the usual pictures of students, faculty, buildings and organizations, there are many poems and essays, news of alumni, business advertisements, and seven pages of the sorriest "joshes" (jokes) ever.

  An example:
  Teacher: Give me a word containing the prefix "semi."
  Pupil (frantically waving her hand): Cemetery.

- From member Lillian Farris, a 5 x 7 photo taken in 1964 at a block party on Hans Avenue. They called themselves the "Hans Avenue Prune Pickers" in reference to the many prune trees still located in their subdivision at the time.

- Last meeting's guest speaker, Tim Stanley, donated a copy of his book titled "The Last of the Prune Pickers."

August Art Festival at the Rengstorff House

Press Release from the Friends of the R' House

The 2012 Arts Festival promises to be one of the most engaging and colorful August events in the 12 years of this festival. The Friends of 'R' House will host four exciting performances in the tranquil gardens on Sunday afternoons as well as the traditional fine art show in the house. All performances are free and general admission with lawn seating. Rengstorff House is located at Shoreline in Mountain View at 3050 N. Shoreline Blvd.

Josh Friedman, local guitar virtuoso and composer brings his expanded repertoire of modern guitar music on August 5, at 2:00.

Rob Reich Trio. Presenting an altered take on the jazz piano trio with an accordion, this trio creates a "hothouse where thousands of musical flowers bloom". They will be in the gardens located on the left of the house on August 12 at 2:00.

Monteverdi Brass. Experience early renaissance music performed on modern instruments by this quintet of professional concert musicians on August 19 at 2:00.

Daniel Wood & Co. This multi-faceted local musician is back with his amusing style and personality. Hear charmingly unexpected tunes improvised on his jazz-inspired horn and alphorn on August 26 at 2:00.

The fine arts show in the house will feature both returning and new local artists in various media including water color, oil, acrylic and mosaic. Juried student work from the Art4Schools program in Mountain View schools will be featured and sponsored by the Community School of Music and Arts. This promises to be an extensive and varied show. The show is open for viewing on Tuesday, Wednesday and Sunday, 11:00- 5:00 throughout August and September. A reception to meet the artists will be held on Thursday, August 2, 5:00-7:00 in Rengstorff House.

A New Park's Rich History

By Nick Perry
Newsletter Editor

Have you been to Mtn. View's newest (37th!) park? On Saturday, June 9, Mariposa Park opened between Mariposa Street and West Dana Street.

"Mariposa" means "butterfly" in Spanish, and the park's design by Robert Mowat Associates carries that theme in many unique and playful ways such a butterfly garden and benches shaped like caterpillars.

Within the butterfly garden are four pillars that might be of special interest to MVHA members; Each pillar features an interpretive panel on the history of the surrounding area, one of Mountain View's oldest neighborhoods. Each of the four history panels is paired with a separate panel drawing parallels between the neighborhood's growth and the four life-stages of a butterfly.

The park was built on land formerly occupied by a collection of cottages and a Victorian-era home and barn. Although these structures had to be removed to build the park, there history is commemorated on the fourth pillar.

MVHA's leadership supported the creation of these pillars and newsletter editor Nick Perry helped the park's landscape architect write and review text, as well as pick out photos to use on each pillar. So next time you're in the vicinity of Mariposa Park - be sure to check out this new tribute to our city's history.

Street Talk

In 1963 the City Council approved plans for a new housing development for the Frank Ormonde farm property at Stierlin Road and the proposed new Middlefield Road extension.

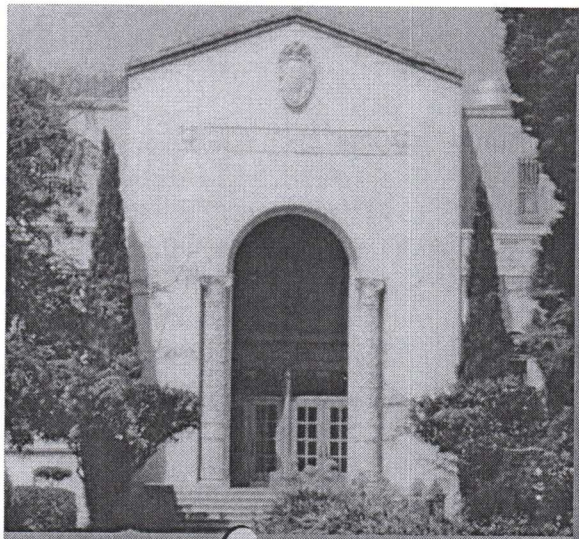

Sterling Homes Inc. would begin construction on 130 single-family houses in the $15,000 to $18,000 range. Eventually additional homes would be added with apartments and business areas.

A current map shows Ormonde Way, named for the former property owners and Mountain Shadows Drive, the actual subdivision's name.
